

We thought you'd like to know...

Mold

Mold has been much in the news in the last few months – especially as it relates to building and maintaining “healthy houses”. At Coolman Communities, this isn’t something new. We first began attending conferences on this topic nearly 20 years ago.

It would be impossible to communicate everything that we’ve learned about the subject – even in an all-day conversation.

What we will do is provide you with a broad range of resources – from government studies, to the latest publications, to independent websites, to fully inform you about the topic, and insure you that we will be building your home with the latest information available on the topic, to ensure that you have a healthy house.